History of the Green Mountain Inn

The Inn has a fascinating history! The Main Inn and Old Depot buildings are listed as number 13 and 14 on the National Register of Historic Places, and the Sanborn House is listed as number 105. Over the years, the Inn has hosted many famous visitors, including Lowell Thomas, who made regular broadcasts from the Inn; President Gerald Ford, who visited as a student on a modeling assignment for Look Magazine; and President Chester A. Arthur, who acted in a theatrical production at the Inn. The Inn also boasts many colorful innkeepers over the years, including the famous Parker Perry who owned the property for over 35 years.

The Inn in the 1800s

The inn was built by Peter C. Lovejoy as a private dwelling in 1833. Mr. Lovejoy traded the residence with Mr. Stillman Churchill for a 350-acre farm. In 1850 Mr. Churchill added two brick wings and a dance hall to the original building, built a double porch in front and opened a hotel called the "Mansfield House." Financial difficulties obliged Churchill to borrow money from W.H.H. Bingham, eventually he lost the property when Mr. Bingham found it necessary to foreclose on the mortgage.

The Mansfield House was transferred to W.P. Bailey, who ran the hotel for several years as the "Brick Hotel." In 1892, Mark C. Lovejoy purchased the Brick Hotel and renamed it the "Green Mountain Inn." In 1897, The Depot Building was erected to house the Mount Mansfield Electric Railroad. The Sanborn House was built that same year, housing a blacksmith shop and livery.

The Start of a New Era

In 1982, the Inn was purchased by Marvin Gameroff, a Canadian visitor to Stowe who fell in love with the property. The Inn was transferred to the Gameroff Trust, the present owner, and a massive restoration project was completed in 1983 to honor its 150th birthday. Each original Main Inn and Depot room was lovingly restored to offer the perfect blend of classic country elegance and modern comfort.

Hand-made quilts, wallpapers, stenciling, draperies and primitive reproductions of early American design, lovely 18th century furniture manufactured especially for the Inn and American salt glaze stoneware lamps added the grace and charm of a bygone era. While retaining the original character of the Inn, many modern safety features were added at this time, including a full sprinkler/fire alarm system, internal fire stairs and exits and new electrical wiring. In addition, cable television, air conditioning, an outdoor swimming pool, meeting space, a fully equipped health club and The Whip Bar & Grill restaurant were added to the Inn's facilities.

In 1989, the Inn underwent more major work, including the refurbishing of all common areas. The living room, library and foyer were decorated with original Walton Blodgett watercolor paintings, adding to the remarkable collection already on display in the Main Street Dining Room. These paintings depict many familiar local scenes, each one dramatically capturing a part of Stowe's heritage. Eight smaller rooms were combined to create three Inn Suites with fireplaces and Jacuzzis.

Annex Renovation & Club House Addition

A complete renovation of our Annex building took place in 1993, which included new bathrooms and the addition of antique reproduction furnishings. That same year, eight Club House rooms, some with four-poster canopy beds, fireplaces and Jacuzzis were added, and in 1994, two Deluxe Club House Suites (the Spruce & Smugglers Suites) opened, offering fully equipped kitchens, living rooms with fireplaces and DVDs, Jacuzzis and bedrooms with four-poster canopy beds. Our Club House rooms were completely refurbished in the spring of 2002 to offer guests a luxurious atmosphere and added amenities such as coffee makers, refrigerators and new furnishings. During your stay, we encourage you to experience the Inn's new covered walkway connecting the health club to our year-round heated outdoor pool - complete with a cozy fireside sitting area to add to your relaxation!

Luxury Offerings in the Mill House, Sanborn House & Old Depot

In 1997, a new phase of expansion began in our quest to offer the most luxurious accommodations in Stowe. The Mill House was constructed, adding eight elegantly appointed rooms with king canopy beds, Jacuzzis (most are fireside), fireplaces, sitting areas, refrigerators/coffee makers, DVD Players, CD players and many other fine amenities. In 1998, the Depot Building was expanded to enlarge the retail space in the Depot Shops and to offer four additional deluxe rooms with many of the same amenities as the Mill House. In 1999, the Inn purchased and completely renovated the historic Sanborn House on Depot Street, adding two luxurious Village “apartments” – one with one bedroom and the other with two. The Sterling and Pinnacle feature fully equipped kitchens, living rooms with fireplaces, large screen televisions and DVD Players, washers and dryers and master bedrooms with fireside Jacuzzis.

The Mansfield House

The Inn’s most ambitious expansion project culminated with the addition of the Mansfield House in 2000, adding 22 rooms and suites with every modern luxury. Guests enjoy exquisite amenities, including queen or king canopy beds with down duvets and hand-made quilt covers. Fireside Jacuzzis, marble baths, original artwork, large screen televisions, CD/DVD players with surround sound stereo, large desks and more. Wireless Internet access is available in the Mansfield House.

In 2004, two loft-style apartments were added in the Inn’s luxurious Mansfield House. Each 1,800 square foot apartment offers loads of added amenities, including a spacious living room with 55” screen television, DVD player, a game table with foosball, sofa bed, fully equipped kitchen, bathroom with large Jacuzzi, and a washer/dryer. The Starr offers two queen beds and a sofa bed. The National features one king and two sofa beds.

In 2008, two family loft-style apartments, Goat and Lifeline Suites, were added to the Mansfield House offering a total of eight apartments directly suited to the needs of families. The new apartments were designed to accommodate families of four. Each two-bedroom apartment is equipped with large screen televisions, a washer and dryer, family area, fully equipped kitchen, two bathrooms, a Jacuzzi tub and all the amenities of home. Though the units are brand new they still hold the classic Inn feel that the Green Mountain Inn is famous for.

Depot Street Townhouses

Our Depot Street Townhouses opened in the summer of 2002. Each offers wonderful accommodations, in a central village location, for a family or two couples traveling together. Inn guests staying in the townhouses are welcome to take advantage of all the amenities of the Inn, including use of our year-round outdoor heated pool, health club, and afternoon tea. Each townhouse is individually decorated. Daily house-keeping service is included in all rentals.

Recent Upgrades

Yearly renovations since 2008 have kept the Inn current, meeting travelers needs while keeping the lovely historic charm. An elevator was added in the Main Inn servicing the Main Street Dining Room, guest accommodations, Village Room, living room and library. All guest rooms have been renovated with new décor, most with granite countertops in the bathrooms, large flat screen televisions, in-room safes, a crisp, luxury bedding program and Keurig coffee makers. Many accommodations now have refrigerators and microwaves. In 2013 the year round outdoor pool underwent major renovations including a brand new pool with expanded seating, an in-ground spa, kiddie pool and fire pit.

During the spring of 2014, the Whip Bar & Grill restaurant underwent a major renovation. The Whip bar, originally designed in 1950, was redesigned and enlarged. The open kitchen line has been extended with brand new equipment. The Whip patio has received finishing touches and provides a beautiful “al fresco” dining experience during the spring, summer and fall seasons. New artwork and updated lighting adorn the walls of the Whip restaurant.

In 2017, a beautiful outdoor wedding ceremony venue was created in our Mansfield House Gardens. This intimate space, with its lovely hand-crafted arch - decorated with colorful flowers of the season - offers the perfect fresh air venue to exchange vows and celebrate milestones. Tucked away on the Inn’s grounds with a cozy firepit and private location, the Mansfield House Gardens may also be reserved for relaxed cocktail receptions and small gatherings.

Throughout 2018, an ambitious room renovation and refurbishment plan for all guest rooms and suites unfolded, with an extensive list of exciting enhancements coming to fruition. Highlights of this major project included updated furnishings, refreshed décor, fresh paint, lighting and carpeting.

In 2019, our historic Main Inn was the center of attention with a handsome redesign of its Main Street entryway to allow an inviting, easier access to Reception. This project also included the addition of our wonderful new Lobby Gift Shop. Offering the ultimate convenience for guests, shop provisions include a great selection of wines, cold beer, beverages, Vermont cheeses, ample snack options and sundries of all kinds. An array of our favorite local products, unique gifts, and signature logo items from the Inn offer perfect souvenirs from your stay.

Today, the Inn offers 104 unique rooms, elegant suites and luxurious village apartments located in 8 buildings in the heart of Stowe Village. Our dedicated and amiable staff are pleased to assist you during your stay and we look forward to welcoming you back!

Our Environmental Policy

In an effort to lessen our environmental impact, the Green Mountain Inn continues to lead the charge by taking steps to become “greener” everyday. The Inn was one of the first to join the State of Vermont’s Green Hotels Program, and makes it a priority to take a more active role in reducing the Inn’s carbon footprint.

The Inn partnered with an intern from Middlebury College to create a master plan intended to lessen our environmental impact. The goal of the plan is to make responsible and environmentally friendly business practices an integral part of our business identity. Other fundamental goals of the initiative are to support and encourage the growth of local agriculture and local business through the extensive use of locally produced products promoting the importance of sustainability.

The Green Mountain Inn has various green initiatives in place such as the towel and linen re-use program, low-flow shower heads, amenity dispensing system, recycling containers in guest accommodations and a composting program, to name a few. The Inn recognizes the importance of sustainability and intends to expand these programs to include changes in the way the resort does business and how each decision affects the environment.

Please join us in making this world a wonderful environment for the many generations to come.

The History of Stowe

Stowe was chartered as a town in 1763, although the first settlers did not arrive until 31 years later in 1794. However, by 1800 most of the land was sold and settled and the population had grown to 316. Over the years the population, as well as the land area of town, continued to grow. Today, Stowe is the largest town in land area in the state with over 50,000 acres and a permanent population of over 4,000. Partially within this land area is Vermont's highest peak, Mt. Mansfield, as well as the finest agriculture and woodland in the state.

In Stowe's early years, agriculture and lumber were the essential industries of the town. At one time over 75% of the land in Stowe, and in fact, most of Vermont, was open land cleared by lumbering and agriculture (primarily sheep farming). In those days there were as many as 8,000 sheep grazing the hills and valleys of Stowe. Stowe's farming fortunes fluctuated with the rest of New England agriculture. Eventually, Stowe, like most of Vermont, shifted from sheep to dairy farms with more than 100 farms in Stowe alone. Today only nine operating farms remain. This change allowed much of the cleared land to reforest, and today only 25% of the land remains cleared.

However, Stowe, unlike most of Vermont, was not all farming. Because of its good transportation connections and fantastic mountain scenery, by the mid-1800's Stowe had developed into a famous summer resort. By 1870, the Toll Road to the top of Mt. Mansfield was completed. The Summit House on the top of Mt. Mansfield was finished just as the Civil War broke out; as was the Mt. Mansfield Hotel, a huge 300 room hotel. In 1889, the "Big Hotel," as it was known, burned to the ground.

A large stable that housed over 100 horses, as well as tack, carriages and stable hands was located behind the "Big Hotel" at the present site of the Green Mountain Inn's Annex wing. This barn was eventually torn down as a fire hazard in 1950, and some of the beams were used in The Whip bar.

The Depot Building, located next to the Green Mountain Inn, was built in 1897 as a depot for the Mt. Mansfield Electric Railway, which ran 11 miles between Waterbury & Stowe. This train carried both freight and passengers and operated until 1932. Presently, the Depot Building is connected to the Inn by a bridge and houses 18 hotel rooms, as well as a variety of shops on the lower levels.

Summer tourism remained an important part of Stowe's economic life until World War I. While summer tourism was beginning to decline, a new era was being born. In 1913, the beginning of Stowe's real destiny made its appearance. Three resident Swedish families had taken to traveling around town on long wooden boards with upturned ends. The local citizenry was curious about this new means of transportation. A few townspeople became hooked on this strange new sport and skiing found a home in Stowe.

In 1921, Stowe held its first Winter Carnival with ski jumping, skating and other activities. However, downhill skiing never developed here until after the Great Depression when the Civilian Conservation Corps established camps in Stowe and began clearing ski trails on Mt. Mansfield. The first, in 1933, was the Bruce Trail that went from the present site of the Octagon to Ranch Camp. This trail is now incorporated into the Mt. Mansfield Ski Touring trail system. Next, in 1934, one of the most famous ski trails, the Nose Dive, was cut. In the early days, skiers hiked the 2.5 miles to the top. Eventually, there were rope tows followed by the construction of the single chair in 1940. This chair operated until 1986 when it was replaced by the high-speed detachable quad. Skiing and the town of Stowe expanded steadily over the years as interest in skiing grew. In the process, Stowe established its reputation as one of the premier ski resorts in the world. In 2010 Stowe Mountain Resort underwent a $400 million expansion with high-speed lifts, snowmaking ponds, new snowmaking equipment, a new base lodge, a transfer lift and a new Adventure Center.

What is a Walton Blodgett?

BY VERA BECKERHOFF

A “Walton Blodgett” is a watercolour painting depicting the very core of Vermont. Walton Blodgett, the painter, lived 22 years in Stowe. Moving here in 1941 from Connecticut, he trained under George Luks in New York and George Pierce Ennis in Maine. Blodgett captured the light and life of Vermont in 1940’s and 50’s.

Wally, as some knew him, lived on Route 100 across from Shaws. His studio, next to the house, provided a magnificent view of Mt. Mansfield and he could watch and paint the various times of day in all the seasons. The Green Mountain Inn still has the largest public display of his work in their dining room and lobby. These were collected by a former owner who had a special relationship with the painter, enabling him to decorate his inn and the painter to feed his family. His other paintings in Stowe are prized for their personal meaning to the families whose homes or farms he painted.

Walton Blodgett had that unique ability to paint the essence of a subject. He chose his subjects for their simplicity: a barn or a home, or even a single tree were featured. He drew boldly, filling a small sheet of paper, creating the illusion of a larger image. He could paint blocky, monotonous rock surfaces in a granite quarry or the “twiggyness” of a row of trees.

When he included figures, they were children pulling sleds or a farmer harnessing his team of horses in the barnyard. Stylistically, his figures were cartoonlike and not real portraits, but they lent warmth to the pictures. He was foremost a landscape painter.

Walton Blodgett filled sketchbooks with ideas for painting and then, in the studio, would translate those ideas into watercolours at his drawing table. As his eyesight deteriorated, he memorized the order of the mixed pans of watercolour at his worktable. This explains why his later paintings tend to be simpler, more concerned with larger areas and less with details. the very core of Vermont.

When Wally mixed colours, sometimes the pigment was so intense that it was hard to tell dark blue from dark green or black. As he chose to simplify his subjects, his palette consisted of only six or eight colours. In a letter to a niece, he suggested that any black that came from a tube and not mixed by the artist only “deserved to be fed to the family dog or massaged in the gums!” White also deserved the same fate deeming that “if you want white, leave the paper white.”

The complexity of colours he achieved with a limited palette makes his work even more admirable. Fall scenes are a riot of reds, oranges and yellows; winter roads and snow banks on a sunny day are icy blue and grays; and the cool of summer in the shade of maple trees is in the darkest greens.

Although his paintings are 50 to 70 years old, they are “now.” Some of the houses and farms he painted are still here, and those that are gone are vividly remembered by the paintings he left us. When the viewing public looks at a “Walton Blodgett,” they see “Vermont.”
